WORK PERMIT SYSTEM FOR FISH CANNERS STIRS CONTOVERSY

Sudden flareup in the controversy over working permits, under the system of the Monterey Fish Cannery Workers Union, was caused by a letter and an editorial in the Monterey Peninsula Herald last week, and the newspaper, in fairness, printed the union's side in full the following days.

The letters and editorials are self explanatory and need no comment, but are re-printed in full by request:

GENERALS AND GOSSIPS

For several weeks the Patton incident has provided fuel for the gossip mongers. It was a case of General Patton losing his temper and while he was in this con-dition he did and said the inexcusable to a couple soldiers, who had been sent to the hospital because they were suffering with "battle fatigue." Apparently Patton felt they were playing possum, but was convinced afterwards they were not.

Patton was roundly rebuked by General Eisenhower, who gave him his choice between apologizing both to the soldiers he had humiliated as well as to the rest of the men under him or be relieved of his command.

Patton saw his mistake, admitted he was wrong and made such amends as were demanded by his superior off cer. Evidently those near the scene of the incident felt that after Patton had apologized no good purpose could be served by airing it overseas. Even the newspapermen took this view of it and omitted mention of what had happened. But the gossips here at home had to have their fling, when they learned of it three months later, and for several weeks they have been having it out on AFL Committee for political acthe radio and in the newspapers at the expense of the tion have separately and jointly general who lost his temper.

General Eisenhower could have reduced Patton's rank for what he had done but did not do so. He says Patton is a good general in battle and that he does not have too many who are. All we have to say about this incident is that General Eisenhower handled it admirably. He gave Patton well deserved rebuke but also gave him credit for the excellent part he had played in the campaigns of Tunisia and Sicily, which, by the way, is just as common knowledge among our people as the inexcusable incident now for the present candidates will be also is, thanks to the over zealous gossips.

GERMANY'S WAR MACHINE CRUMBLING

Initial success and the painful regularity with which prices. the weaker nations fell to the axis blitz in the beginning stages of the present war built up a mythical impression, not only among the German people but among a very large percentage of our own people, that the German "wehrmacht" was invincible.

That invincibility has now been challenged and definitely disproved by the Red Army in Russia and by the Allied armies of Great Britain and the United States organized in North Africa, Sicily and now in Italy.

The Dunkirk staged in 1940, when the blitz drive of the axis was at its height and the retreating British army was at its lowest ebb, marked dark days for all the countries, which were marked for slaughter by those who directed the war machine of Germany.

Now the tide is turning. Two and a half years of incessant pounding by everything the German army had been reading across the room. against the stonewall resistance of Russia has greatly weakened the military strength of Germany. No more is this war machine able to take any position it wants. Instead a German army of three and a half million well trained and well equipped soldiers has been driven, during the past five months, out of city after city in Russia.

Already two thirds of the territory overrun by the It should be banned throughout of questions of policy, and in past Germans in Russia has been regained by the Red Army, which shows no signs of letting up on their determination to drive every invader from Russian soil.

For two years the United States has been preparing to wage war against the military might of Germany. In a tragic thing. It has nothing to every field of action thus far entered it has been demonstrated that our troops can more than hold their own against the Germans. Great Britain has also been developing an efficient war machine, while Russia is daily demonstrating the superiority of both her guns and radical who once ran a dress shop tanks.

Staggering losses of men and equipment in the losing battle the Germans have been waging in Russia, since they tried to open a 1943 offensive, July 5th, are beginning to show their effects. No more are the Germans attacking when and where they please. Instead they are fighting desperately to hold the gains of bygone days. Hardly a day passes but what they are being driven out of positions held since the earliest stages of the present war. 'Democratizing' of Nation's Tax against Negroes in some large war plants, with a resulting increase in the total employment of Negroes in practically every branch of war in practically every branch of war of Play-Boy' Income Suggested

By "OBSERVER"

Nearly every present day thinker along economic lines is concerned with a reformation of our tax system both in the wider use of Negroes or, perhaps, lack of system.

Nearly every one will admit that taxes should be levied on the principle of "ability to pay." The question tional upgrading of Negroes in all firms," the survey reported. "This then becomes: WHO is able to pay? Taxing railroads and other public utilities falls on the users of those utilities. Taxing railroads means higher freight rates. Taxing forces both in this war and the telephone companies means higher rates. Taxing merchants means higher prices for goods sold. President Conant of Harvard College advocates greatly increased inheritance taxes. Only a few states have heavy inheritance taxes. Some states have no inheritance taxes and induce wealthy people to establish legal residence in such states.

The main difficulty in the administration of the inheritance tax 1943 Negro placements were 3.2 is in collection. If the owner of a going business or industrial plant dies, per cent of all placements in skilled and the collection of a heavy tax-say fifty per cent-is attempted at once, it may mean almost total loss or destruction of the business. A jobs as compared to 2.7 per cent in fair method might be the appointment of a public trustee, or board of the same quarter of 1942, the surtrustees, who could act in behalf of the government to prevent loss, vey found. Placements in semiskilled occupations were 7.6 per both to the heirs and to the government.

After a man is dead he no longer needs money or business. What he has accumulated has come from the people. Nothing could be fairer than that the part of the estate not actually needed by the heirs should be returned to the people who made the fortune possible.

The antics of the Doris Dukes and the notorious play-boy heirs of great fortunes emphasize the desirability of democratizing the tax

Is Compensation Overdue? Just Get In Touch With Paul Scharrenberg

The Industrial Aceident Commission has had several complaints to the effect that compensation payments legally due, have not been made promptly, as provided by law, says Paul Scharrenberg, Director of In-The insurance carriers involved have placed the blame on the shortage of manpower and their consequent inability to operate on schedule. The Industrial Accident Commission does not intend to accept such an alibi for failure to make compensation payments, when due, and will take whatever steps may be necessary to compel compliance with the law. An appeal is therefore made to all who are entitled to compensation to report promptly any delay in such payments. Please do so by personal call, by mail, or report through your Union. The Industrial Accident Commission will then take immediate steps to enforce the law. Such reports will also enable the Commission to compile a record of Casualty Insurance Companies that are habitual offenders.

The Industrial Accident Commission maintains offices in the State Buildings in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Sees Business Giants Steam Rolling People

But private enterprise has been threatened; indeed, it has been undermined to an appalling degree not by government and not so much by business itself, for all the monopolistic practices which have so frequently been condemned, but by a general failure to comprehend the change which has taken place and a failure to properly coordinate government and business in their relation to people.

This failure, it has seemed to me, is principally due to the fact that we seem not to realize that modern business is no longer the activity of individuals, but is the activity of organizations of individuals and we have permitted these organizations to grow so large that people are actually helpless before them.

We have persisted in treating these organizations as though they were clothed with human rights instead of having only the rights which the people acting through their government, see fit to bestow upon them. It will be impossible even to begin the task of adjusting government to business until we realize that the modern business organization has grown to such proportions that neither the people, as individuals, nor their local governments are able to cope with it.

Local business, little business, private enterprises and local government, even the government of the states themselves, are in truth and in fact submerged by modern business organizations.—
From the Final Report and Recommendations of the Temporary Economic Committee, SENATOR JOSEPH O'MAHONEY, chairman.

YOUR CONGRESSMAN REPORTS

GEORGE E. OUTLAND

Many letters arrive daily in this office. Some of them are critical, some of them are condemnatory, some of them are complimentary. Letters come with requests for assistance, with expressions of opinion, with enclosed resolutions. All of them are welcome. Once in a while a letter comes which has such a point of view and is of such general interest that your representative would like to share it with others. My column this week is made up of one of the finest letters I have ever read in my life, a letter from a constituent in our district which is heart-warming in its sincerity, its understanding, and its broadness. With only one or two minor identifying phrases removed, I quote this letter in its entirety.

"Dear Sir: As one of your constituents I wish to express my viewpoint in regard to various affairs of our government, which, as a farmer with growing children and many near relatives in our armed last, to me are of great concern.

"The apparent trends in the legislative branch of our government and oddly enough among some of their constituents point toward a repetition of the breakdown of our economy which led us so near to disaster following the last war.

"These trends must be checked even at the cost of political safety. They are the result of the indefatigable efforts of selfish interests in our country who harbor nothing but enmity toward our great President and his able administration. They are capitalizing on the gullibility of those of us whose political viewpoints have changed along with our financial status, and the war boom has swelled their ranks to ominous proportions.

"For the safety of our country and in due fairness to those who are defending it with their lives, it is with no serenity of conscience that I find the commodities I raise doubling in price. . . . It was the use of subsidies that enabled the farming industry to build up from the ruins of 1932 to its present enormous capacity to produce. I believe their use to curtail inflation now is as essential to the industry's welfare as it was then. "In regard to government financ-better prepared to pay taxes and elimination of the poll tax. Many never more willing. I think the of those answering the poll are curtailment of the administration's tax plan and refusal as to methods of levying was a :nistake, which was all the more deplorable in that it revealed the tendency of our Congress to yield to selfish interest rather than practical legislation.

"The movement to liquidate the Production Credit Association is another example showing how powerful minorities are utilizing the transient prosperity that prevails at the present time and the apathy among those who owe their economic security to such organizations. In this particular community it was the Federal Farm loans and Production Credit that saved it from complete evacuation in the years following the depression, and they may be used to the same advantage in the future. "In regard to labor may I state that I do not condone actions by any group or individuals that spring from selfish designs or in any way impede the prosecution of the war. However, I am inclined to believe that labor is being sadly misrepresented by influential groups and the nation's press. It is with keen resentment that I find myself, a farmer, and as one of a group of farmers who, encouraged by our leaders, become aligned toward the common good are in the main contrary to mine, and who so much desire to align me against the laboring classes to which I fundamentally belong and on whose freedom and security my own depends so much.

"These are my own conclusions and convictions, based on my own observations. I am independent of any political affiliations and I trust I have not given the impression that I am unduly prejudiced one way or the other. I hope you will pardon this intrusion upon your attention when you are engaged on the important affairs of our government. . . ."

To a representative struggling to maintain fairness in judgment, intelligence in voting choice, and sincerity in representing the interests of his district and his nation, a letter like the above gives renewed courage and increased faith.

Fifty Thousand Idle Daily Because of War Plant Injury, Shown Washington, D. C

More than 50,000 manufacturing workers are absent from their jobs every day because of industrial injuries, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins reported.

"Industrial injuries disabled approximately 69,000 manufacturing workers during August with a resulting loss of 1,300,000 man-days of production," she said. "This loss, which does not include any allowance for the continuing economic effect of the many deaths and permanent physical impairments, is equivalent to full time employment during August for 53,000 workers."
